HOW TO OUT LIVE THE POLAR VORTEX

You knew it was cold when the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago kept its polar bear inside! And when every state in the union dipped below 32 degrees on Tuesday (including Hawaii). Suddenly Americans have added two meteorological words to their vocabulary, "polar vortex."

Like a spinning top atop our planet is a band of high altitude winds that circle the Artic. As I heard one meteorologist describe it, when that spinning top slows down and begins to wobble (like any good top can do), that's when the frigid polar winds dip southward away from the North Pole and when the polar vortex becomes a part of our Northern Hemisphere vocabulary and experience.

And what an experience here in little Berrien Springs. Tuesday morning our thermometer at home read the lowest I've ever seen it, 13

THE PLAYPEN

Go to your room! Sit in the corner! Take a time out! Have you ever heard or used these phrases? They represent what I call “The Playpen.” A playpen is used to protect the baby, allow only “safe” toys, keep the dog from licking the baby, keep the baby from destroying things. It is also used to keep the baby from harmful medicine, chemicals, eating dog food, the hot stove, and smashed fingers in the door.

The playpen for babies is necessary, but as they grow older the playpen is used less because they learn that the dog food is for dogs, chemicals are not for drinking, and hot stoves are not to be touched—that their parents truly love them and want to protect them from harm. Babies understand by experience that the word “hot” results in pain if touched—that disobedience brings its own consequence. Sometimes as adults we forget this principle because the results of disobedience are not immediate. Eventually the baby gets strong enough to climb out of the playpen and should have started to develop self-control. We want to treat the child like an adult, but when the child is undisciplined, he or she needs to be put back in “the playpen” temporarily and given further instruction. Maturity in this process begins and ends with love for, and trust in, the parents.

God also has a playpen. It is called The 10 Commandments and is sometimes referred to as the “Walls of Salvation” (Isaiah 26:1-4). The Most Holy Place, where the 10 commandments were kept, was square—just like a playpen—as was the breastplate, and is the New Jerusalem. Commandments 1-9 are often thought of in terms of external behavior. There is value in worshiping God, and not lying, stealing, or killing people. But God wants to put the law in our minds through His law of love. Commandment number 10 says “Do not covet” meaning desire. Because you love God and others, you don’t want to go faster than the speed limit, hate, murder, or steal! When everyone’s mind is inside God’s playpen of love, they don’t even want to disobey; and everyone is safe from the consequences of disobedience! You can remove the speed limit signs, and the locks from your doors! God’s Law of Love is for grownups.

HOMEBOUND / WHERE ARE THE GOOD SAMARITANS?

As part of PMC's Homebound Ministry Team, Steve and Esther Tarangle, a retired physician and nurse, enjoy visiting people like 97-year-old Thomas Starkey. Dr. Tarangle explains why he feels this ministry is so important.

"Early in my career, when I was the house physician for a 65-resident nursing home, I found that a large number of our residents received no visitors. These people longed for visits from family, friends, and pastors. One day a resident, an Adventist church member, asked me whether there was a difference between an injured man lying by the side of the road and one lying on a nursing home bed or isolated at home and a Levite passing by on the other side of the road. He proceeded to ask me whether there were any Good Samaritans left in the church. I took serious note of this dilemma."

Later Dr. Tarangle prepared a sermon which he delivered in six Adventist churches. "I explained that in our midst are Seniors, many of them who were once vibrant members of our church, in need—socially, psychologically, medically and spiritually. I asked the haunting question, 'Where are the Good Samaritans?' I reminded them that Jesus told us in Matthew 25: 42-45 that whenever we fail to help His people in need, no matter how unimportant they seem, we fail to do it for Him."

If you feel God calling you to join the Homebound Ministry Team, please contact Norita Lachica.

Let's not be like the Levite who passed by on the other side of the road, but Good Samaritans who stop and care for others. —Sue Rappette

SIDEWALK SS / LEADING AND LEARNING

In 2012, Harbor of Hope decided to take our children's outreach to the 'sidewalk.' Children, parents, and apartment staff have all embraced Sidewalk Sabbath School (formerly Kids Zone). This simpler model has allowed more mentoring time with local teens like Lynese, a 15-year-old 'female TD Jakes' who tells excellent Bible stories. There is Adonis, who operates the sound system and wants to volunteer for any work any time he has a chance! In October we rewarded these teens' commitment by taking them and four other teen volunteers for a 'weekend mission trip' to Metro World Child. It was inspiring for them to participate in a similar ministry that reaches nearly 100,000 urban children and also to meet the leaders, many having grown up in an urban environment themselves. Your support is helping to change the lives of young people like Lynese and Adonis in Benton Harbor.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

AA / PRACTICAL SKILLS

Education in Technology is an important part of Andrews Academy's program. The training that students get in classes such as Construction, Auto Mechanics and Home Skills helps young people to be useful and a blessing in their homes and throughout the community. There are fringe benefits too. Often they not only acquire skills that can be used in trades, such as carpentry and cabinetmaking, but many will find a wonderful rewarding life-long hobby.

Some people think that students who do not plan to pursue vocational careers do not need any experience in practical skills. But it is an advantage when a person knows how to cook healthful meals and take care of everyday needs, no matter what their social status. Practical training prepares students for the realities of life and develops critical thinking (sometimes called "common sense"). Also, the ability to make or fix things can be tremendously fulfilling and a significant asset to the family budget. For instance, being able to fix your car or make minor repairs in your home is especially helpful in difficult financial times.

One of the technology classes taught this year at Andrews Academy is Auto Mechanics. The course covers the fundamental skills in caring for the interior and exterior of an automobile. Auto Mechanics teacher Mario Ferguson also shows students how to safely use hand and power tools and welding equipment.

We have been counseled that "the purpose of Christian education is to qualify students for usefulness in this life and for the future life in the kingdom of God." Andrews Academy seeks to give this type of well-rounded education to our young people and bring glory to our Creator God.

below. And that was without wind chill. Not even a polar bear deserves to be out in that frigid air. Which is why Andrews University and all the schools in town, in fact in the region, shut down for two frozen days.

And while nobody around a campus usually complains about an extra snow day or two, the impact of severe weather is hard to measure. With 7000 flights canceled on Monday and Tuesday across the nation, with the construction industry put on icy hold for a few days, but with the offsetting sale of winter clothing and supplies, economists consider extreme winter weather basically a draw in terms of long term financial impact.

But wouldn't it be great if, even as we humans tend to huddle closer to one another on snow-blown nights, even so there were a concomitant relationship between frigid weather and a drawing closer to God? When you consider the emotional chill that plagues so much of society today—the insular, almost polar freeze that keeps us apart—think of the social (not to mention spiritual) impact our drawing closer and closer to God would have on the people around us.

“Come near to God, and he will come near to you” (James 4:8).

Not because He doesn't want to be the first to move. Calvary is crimson proof enough that God always makes the first move! But as a gracious and considerate Friend, God waits to know if you really do want to draw nearer to Him, if you really do want Him to draw near to you. Give the nod, say Yes, raise your hand, lift up your heart—and in that instant “he will come near to you.”

In the cover of my prayer journal a few days ago, I scribbled this line: “My prayer and mission—the older I get, the closer I grow.” Want to join me in that New Year quest? Our new mini-series will probe how to do just that—how to be more like Jesus. I hope you'll share the journey right here at this website (www.pmchurch.tv) or right here in worship at Pioneer each Sabbath.

“Come near to Me, and I will come near to you.” That's enough to warm any soul, isn't it?

CALL TO WORSHIP

God's love has been poured into hearts through the Holy Spirit which has been given to us.

Where the spirit of the Lord is there is freedom.

As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the children of God.

The Spirit itself gives witness to our spirit, that we are the children of God.

THE WORD

1 JOHN 3:1-3 NIV

See what great love the Father has lavished on us, that we should be called children of God! And that is what we are!

The reason the world does not know us is that it did not know him.

Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been made known.

But we know that when Christ appears, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is.

All who have this hope in him purify themselves, just as he is pure.

MUSIC ALIVE

A SPIRITUAL

It is only one of many, this spiritual—"Give Me Jesus." This one is particularly potent in its sheer eloquent simplicity of text. It uses different periods of day to make potent spiritual points. Interestingly, it starts with morning and progresses to midnight (and emphatically dark midnight, at that), then to "about the break of day." Perhaps this latter reference is literal, not figurative. But have you ever thought why it precedes "when I come to die"? Were it a figure of speech about the resurrection, one might properly think of it as following death. But here, could it be true that this spiritual refers to a hope of daybreak, a hope in the living before they die that death will not be final?
