WELCOME!

Spring? It may be a wet and cold spring, but our church family is warm and inviting. We have the promise of summer weather just around the corner, so with glad hearts let us come into our Creator's presence with singing. No matter the headlines, public or private, no matter the weather, God reigns, and the last word will be His. Come, let us worship Him!

END GAME ECONOMICS

May I recommend a new book to you? Three or four weeks ago I was visiting with one of our guests after the worship service. He and his family from Toronto were on campus with their prospective student. He is a Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) and financial advisor for the past twenty years. He told me about a book he has written and offered to send me a copy. When it arrived a week ago, I sat down and began reading. I was so intrigued I finished Tim Aka's 2014 book, End Game Economics: Understanding the Financial Crisis through Scripture, a few days later (a Kindle version is available at amazon.com).

His rather dramatic premise is that you can trace the fault lines of a predicted global economic collapse in the ancient prophecies of Scripture. That in itself may not be such a novel suggestion. What

"I WILL DO A NEW THING"

SACRIFICE

What does the word sacrifice mean to you? Is your definition similar to when the Israelites would bring a lamb to be burned on the altar? What a total waste of resources going up in smoke! Think of all the poor children who could have had a decent meal. Or does sacrifice actually have deeper spiritual meanings?

Imagine that PMC had a special altar and smoke hood in the foyer of the church. The requirement for entrance is that you take $20, $50, or $100 bills and light them on fire before entering. This requirement is not just a one-time act. Oh no! Every time you come to church you must bring bills to burn—the newer, the better. Again, what a waste of resources that would be. Yet isn't this what a sacrifice really is—giving yourself completely, just as God gave His all, expecting no personal benefit in return?

Of course this is ridiculous, but it can point out some important lessons.

- Jesus the Messiah has already made all your payment-sacrifices. Salvation cannot be purchased. This fact leads to our love response, just accept the gift.

- Our joyful reaction to the gift of salvation is to give Him heartfelt thanks through gifts that are meaningful and important to us.

- Paul makes the sacrifice personal by telling us to "Present your bodies a living sacrifice" (Romans 12:1).

- John the Baptist gave us the promise of the Holy Spirit. "He shall baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire" (Luke 3:16). How can I be baptized with fire? Paul tells us how to be the living sacrifice. "Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind" (Romans 12:2).

- What is being burned out of your heart and mind by the love Christ has for you? What are you asking God to burn out of your character? If we want to walk among "the stones of fire," we need to ask God to do a new thing in our lives and help us put away every hindrance to that process. "Who shall live with everlasting burnings?" (Isaiah 33:14-16).

What are you giving to God to burn today?

—Dennis Hollingsead

"He shall call to the heavens from above, and to the earth, that He may judge His people: 'Gather My saints together to Me, those who have made a covenant with Me by sacrifice.'"

JUNIOR III SS / THE BIBLE IS OUR TEXTBOOK

Each Sabbath morning, the teachers and 5th-graders of the Junior III SS come ready to continue our chronological journey through the Scriptures. We are greeted by a beautifully hand-drawn illustration of the day's story on the white board, and we begin by singing songs whose themes draw our minds to the lesson. Mission stories give us a new appreciation for the challenges faced in other countries, and each week we enjoy an object lesson that demonstrates spiritual points from the lesson in a tangible way, using nature, science, and everyday objects to make the concept memorable. Teacher Aron Balorda tells the story from the lesson in dramatic fashion and highlights important insights. Then, in our table groups, we pray about student concerns, discuss ways that the lesson is relevant to our lives, and do crafts and worksheets that reinforce the lesson. After ending with one more song and a prayer, we challenge the students to continue studying at home. Everything is meant to point students to the Bible and its importance in our lives.

When asked about what they like best about our class, some students cite the mission stories and "science stuff." Others mention seeing friends, the monthly Bible quiz, and the quarterly rewards for faithful participation. Our central goal, however, is reflected in responses like these: "We learn about God," and "I like talking and sharing about God in our small groups."

—Jennifer Clough (Junior 3 Sabbath School Teacher)

MASTER PLAN OF EVANGELISM

YOUTH EVANGELISM / STUDYING FOR BAPTISM

The one difference between this particular GROW Group and the rest is that the oldest person in the group was in the fourth grade. From February until April there has been a baptismal class, and this semester nine children have decided to accept Jesus as their personal Savior and follow Him. The students studied topics such as The Sabbath, Baptism, The Body of Christ, The Death and Resurrection, The Second Coming and many more. The students have voiced interest in participating more in church after this class is over as well as accepting more responsibilities that come with the privileges of being baptized into the Seventh-day Adventist Church. We have had moments of sadness and tears as we have prayed for each other as well as joyful times as we have made smoothies, eaten pizza, and played together. I remember asking one of the students if they knew of or had heard of Ellen White before. One of the students, without a moment's notice, raised his hand and said, "Pastor, I know him. He is the pastor upstairs on Sabbath." After we caught our breath from laughing together and enjoying this moment, I told him, "No, no, no, not Pastor Dwight, but Ellen White." From the first class until the last, relationships were made with each other and with God. And now, they have successfully finished this class and are ready to move to the next step. Praise God for each one of these students; they will all be baptized this summer. -Travis O'Reilly

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

RMES / REGISTRATION PICNIC AT RMES

“The early education of youth shapes their character in this life and in their religious life” (E. G. White, Christian Education, pg. 2). As Solomon says: “Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it” (Proverbs 22:6).

Ruth Murdoch Elementary School, as one of our students said, “is an exceptional school with caring and nurturing Seventh-day Adventist teachers.” Families sacrifice to send their children to our school, and we consider it a blessing as well as a big responsibility to guide these children to Jesus.

When students spend one third of their lives at a school, this can be a challenge. Choosing the proper influence for these young minds is a big decision! Spending time at a school with friends and teachers who share core values is so important.

Our teachers take the time to intentionally teach their students about Jesus through daily prayer, worship, and song. But the thing that makes Jesus real is when our teachers make Jesus present in a practical way. Whenever the opportunity arises to describe Jesus during a lesson, it teaches the students that Jesus is involved in every aspect of life, and not just at prayer or worship time.

Come and learn about our school, meet our teachers, enjoy some food, fellowship, and fun. We invite you to our annual Registration Picnic on Monday, May 19, 5:30 to 7:30 PM. Discounted Registration Fee is now open for the 2014/2015 school year during May 1 through 19.

As of May 3, 2014

I found stunning was his collection of accumulating evidences in the economies of the world's leading economic powers (U.S., China, Japan, the European Union) to support his conclusion that the "proverbial 'perfect storm' is nearing and we can track its progress by watching the developments in energy, food and water, debt, stock markets, and cost inflation. These forces are relentlessly driving towards an event horizon of economic chaos" (117).

Consider, he writes, the divine warning in Habakkuk 2:6—"Will not all these take up a proverb against him [Babylon], and a taunting riddle against him, and say, 'Woe to him who increases what is not his [debt]—how long? And to him who loads himself with many pledges [of indebtedness]?'"

Everyone knows that the amassing of national and personal debt is now the most debilitating practice of both government and populace. Which is Aka's point. We are addicted to debt and it is killing us. "The only solutions that governments around the world can offer are more debt and more money printing to pretend that all is well. . . . There is an illusion of wealth and well being, as the stock markets are ramped up every day, but there is less real economic value being created" (31).

Prayerfully consider the mounting economic evidence for yourself. In 2000 the dot.com bubble of technology collapsed, and the economy plunged. In 2007 the real estate bubble collapsed, and the economy nearly melted down. And now the Federal Reserve's quantitative easing (money printing) debt bubble is on the edge of collapse. Where will this one leave us? Aka compares our predicament to a low-flying airliner, running out of fuel, but with no place to land. Inexplicably the pilot shoves the throttle forward into a steep climb, consuming precious fuel, but giving the impression that all is well, when in fact on that climb the fuel will run out. Only those with golden parachutes (the 1% of earth) will profit from that desperate climb, bailing out, leaving the hapless passengers (you and me) strapped in that crashing airliner.

How then should we live, you and I? If ever Habakkuk 2:6's indebtedness ought to be shunned, it is certainly now. In the mini-series, "How to Quantify Your Happiness," over the next few weeks let's share ancient wisdom that can spare us (as much as is possible here on the brink) unnecessary personal financial and spiritual collapse. God is the greatest Provider of all: "And my God will meet all your needs according to the riches of his glory in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 4:19)." "The perfect storm" is ahead. But the good news is that in spite of the bad news, God promises to carry us through to the greatest news of all—the long-hoped-for return of Christ. But before the promised return comes "the perfect storm." The point? It's time to prepare.

CALL TO WORSHIP

Enter the house of the Lord with awe.

With wonder we come before our God.

God upholds us with justice and fairness.

God's judgments are rendered with mercy.

THE WORD

ACTS 20:32-35 NIV

"Now I commit you to God and to the word of his grace, which can build you up and give you an inheritance among all those who are sanctified.

I have not coveted anyone's silver or gold or clothing.

You yourselves know that these hands of mine have supplied my own needs and the needs of my companions.

In everything I did, I showed you that by this kind of hard work we must help the weak, remembering the words the Lord Jesus himself said: 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

MUSIC ALIVE

MAKER AND KING

One might not suspect it from the brave, strong stride of the poem. "My Maker and my King, To Thee my all I owe..." What a brave, courageous text it is! "Thy sovereign bounty is the spring Whence all my blessings flow..." And it springs from such a sorrow-ridden, physically-challenged individual! "The creature of Thy hand, On Thee alone I live..." She was born in 1716 or 1717, and she was the elder daughter of a volunteer Baptist minister. An accident in childhood left her an invalid. Her life was marked by extreme sorrow when her fiancé drowned on the eve of their planned wedding. "O! let Thy grace inspire My soul with strength divine..." This was the strong prayer of poet Anne Steele, author of hymn no. 15, "My Maker and My King."

HEALTH NUGGETS

FRUITS & VEGETABLES

How many fruits and vegetables do you eat each day? A recent European study published in The Journal of Epidemiology and Community Health found that people who ate 7+ servings of fruits and vegetables per day had a 42% decreased risk of all-cause mortality than people who ate less than 1 serving per day.

Incorporating fruits and vegetables into foods can really make meal time more exciting and colorful. Aim to eat a variety of produce in different colors to obtain all the different vitamins and minerals they supply. For example, green leafy veggies are a good source of folate, calcium, vitamins A and K, and iron. Whereas orange vegetables such as winter squash are a great source of vitamin A, potassium, magnesium and vitamin C.

CHALLENGE

Next time you go grocery shopping purchase a fruit or vegetable that you have never tried. Then go home and search the internet for a new recipe to use it in. You may discover that Brussels sprouts aren't as scary as you thought!
