Why I Believe These

IN COMMUNITY

One of the core values of America is that of rugged individualism. In fact, when we're looking for an image to personify this concept, we often think of the Marlboro Man—resolute, alone, experienced; the kind of guy that can fix anything without the help of anyone else. You could say this is reflected in the motto of Home Depot: "You Can Do It. We Can Help."

I'm American and I love my country, but the truth is that sometimes this can affect my view of God and church, can't it? But here's the radical reality of what God is actually like: God loves and lives in community. And He created us to also live in community. That means that we need each other. That's what a church is all about. So we're glad you're here.

HOMETOWN HERO

BY DWIGHT K. NELSON

OK—so he’s from Battle Creek instead of Benton Harbor. But he certainly is a hero down here in southwest Michigan! The two families, who were both celebrating birthdays this last weekend at the Silver Beach hotel down by the lake in St Joseph, didn’t know each other from Adam. But given the winter outside, the hotel’s heated pool was a popular hang out Saturday evening.

That’s when something caught the attention of 29 year old Tim Rose. Sitting poolside with his family and friends, he had observed a 10 year old boy from another family party darting like a fish under water, doing fine. Tim turned his attention back to his own birthday party. But a few moments later, happening to glance at the pool again, he saw the same boy rise to the surface and then for some reason sink back down again, this time all the way to the bottom of the eight-foot-deep section. A few air bubbles escaped from the boy’s mouth, and Tim realized the boy was no longer moving.

He reacted instantly, plunging into the pool, diving down to the bottom to grab the boy and bring him to the surface. He yelled for help, as bystanders rushed to pull the boy from the water and laid him on the concrete edge of the pool. Tim, who learned CPR a few years ago, immediately began mouth to mouth resuscitation alternating with chest compressions. Somebody called 911. Two minutes into his rescue efforts, Tim rolled the boy’s head to the side and seconds later the boy coughed up some water, and showed signs of coming to. Paramedics arrived and rushed the now conscious lad to Lakeland Hospital. The boy’s life had been saved.

IS NO GREATER
JOY THAN SAVING A LIFE.

The next morning the 29 year old tree trimmer ran into a family member of 10 year old Melvin Jackson, of Benton Harbor. “Wait right here,” she instructed the life saver. A few moments later she brought young Melvin to meet his savior. “He gave me a hug and told me I was his angel,” Tim told a reporter. “It was a serious moment in my life. It seemed like forever. I was just hoping for a response and when I finally got that it was definitely a relief” (South Bend Tribune 1-28-15).

“It was a serious moment in my life.” Let’s face it—it always is when a life is on the line, isn’t it? That’s why I hope you’ll give prayerful consideration to joining the new Contagious Adventist GROW Group this new season. Offered at three different times to accommodate your schedule, this new GROW Group will equip you with a winsome and friendly strategy to share your faith with friends, colleagues and neighbors (even strangers). You'll never look at the seven greatest truths of Scripture in the same way again—and now you'll "always be prepared to give an answer to everyone who asks you to give the reason for the hope that you have" (1 Peter 3:15 NIV).

Because there is no greater joy than saving a life. Just ask Tim Rose. And Melvin Jackson. ■

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY- AN ISSUE FOR THE PAST?

BY JOHN NAY

Should Adventists still take an active stance on religious liberty issues? Or is this a settled issue now, at least here in America? After all, freedom of religion is guaranteed by law, by the Constitution, and by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Although religious freedom is not respected in many countries, should we move on to other issues here?

As background, since the organization of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in 1863—and even before—its members have supported religious liberty. Our religious forebears were well outside the “mainstream” of their day, and they realized that their belief in a soon-to-occur Second Advent and their adoption of the seventh-day Sabbath meant they might be treated unfairly based on their religion. The murder of Mormon leader Joseph Smith in June 1844, less than four months before the “great disappointment,” plus state and local Sunday laws then in effect, and opposition to other new denominations, would only have deepened early Adventists' belief in the vital importance of religious liberty.

But now? In the 21st century aren't we guaranteed full religious liberty here after decades of Supreme Court decisions, plus such laws as the Religious Freedom Restoration Act and the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act? No new Sunday law is on the horizon. Just the opposite. We can shop any day of the week, major sporting and other events are held on Sunday, and there is an ever greater diversity of religious belief in America. Clearly America has seen major advances in religious liberty over the past century, and no serious observer of national events can pretend otherwise.

And yet, is there ever a time to say that freedoms are so secure that they can be ignored? As one who has lived and worked abroad for over twenty-five years on four continents, I do not believe so. I had many opportunities to observe life in countries ranging from "free" to "partly free" to "not free" (Freedom House terms) and to speak about the importance of democracy and my gratitude for the guarantees we have of freedom of speech, the press, and religion. I also wrote and/or approved religious freedom reports on several countries.

Here in the United States, we still see a steady flow of legal cases involving religion—some significant at the national level and others that, if ignored, could begin to nibble away at religious liberty. Just today (as I write), the Supreme Court unanimously held in Holt v. Hobbs that a Muslim prisoner must be allowed to wear a beard, as he believes he should. Prison officials had prohibited him from doing so—"security," they said—while granting exemptions to others. Multiple organizations concerned with religious liberty had filed "friend of the court" briefs supporting his appeal. The Religious Liberty division of the General Conference has done so in many such cases.

"What does such a case have to do with us?" you might ask. "We aren't Muslim and we don't expect to ever be in prison." Two solid reasons it concerns us: 1. Reductions in religious liberty in one area have important implications for others; and 2. We simply do not know when we might be arrested for some completely unexpected reason. Just last week I learned of a case from Suriname where two sons of Adventist pastors, both of whom my wife and I know well, were held overnight by police on arrival in Trinidad. Why? Because one was carrying powdered milk and Trinidad customs officers, using an outdated chemical test, claimed it contained cocaine. The next day a more accurate test completely absolved the young men and they were released. During their night as police

"guests," however, they went hungry because they were unwilling to eat the only food they were given, which also went against their religious convictions. Could something similar happen to you or me?

The bottom line is that religious liberty issues are not just issues of the past—even here—and we should be grateful for the Adventist Church's past support for religious liberty and its continuing efforts in this area. There will be a religious liberty offering here at PMC today. Please consider the continuing importance of this issue. ■

TO ZION

Two pieces of music in today’s worship journey refer to heavenly Zion. Today’s Opening Voluntary derives from a string quartet by Franz Joseph Haydn. Today, the theme and two of Haydn’s variations are heard in an arrangement from Haydn’s original. As a hymn tune in the SDA Hymnal, this melody appears as no. 423, with text that begins, “Glorious things of thee are spoken, Zion, city of our God; He whose word cannot be broken Formed thee for His own abode.” Just across the page is “Marching to Zion.”

There, the stirring words of Isaac Watts begin, “Come, we that love the Lord, And let our joys be known; Join in a song with sweet accord, And thus surround the throne.” ■

NOT ALL CAN GO AS MISSIONARIES TO FOREIGN LANDS

BY WILLYTA RUIZ-WAMACK

Students at Ruth Murdoch Elementary School learn daily not only the core courses, but the most important aspect of education: Mission and Service. As quoted on the Ruth Murdoch Elementary School website, “Mission and service projects give young scholars an opportunity to reach out to their community with a helping hand, spread the joy of Christian living with neighbors, and share Jesus with their world.”

This kind of service is exemplified by the story of Deborah Park, our sixth-grade teacher. She wanted to go on the mission trip to the Dominican Republic during Christmas break, but due to her work schedule she was not able to go. This did not stop her from being part of this mission trip. She decided that with the help of her students they would prepare all the materials for the Vacation Bible School that would be held during the mission trip. By working together, Mrs. Park and her class prepared the materials for the VBS that were used by the students from Andrews Academy during the mission trip. The daily VBS attendance varied from 100-115 children.

“There is something for everyone to do. Every soul that believes the truth is to stand in his lot and place, saying, “Here am I; send me.” Isaiah 6:8 –Testimonies, vol. 6, p. 49. ■
