JOURNEY TOGETHER IN WORSHIP

Welcome! We are glad you decided to share in this worship experience. One of the unique elements to this faith community is we are located on a university campus. Every week, college students and young adults contribute to the vibrancy of this church, through leadership and spiritual gifts. You will find them leading worship, preaching, assisting in children's ministry, leading in youth ministry, and even making strategic decisions on the church board. Today you will hear the message from the Religious Vice President of the Andrews University Student Association (AUSA). Additionally, some of his colleagues from the AUSA will lead in other worship elements. Students infuse our church life with wisdom, vitality, and missional relevance. We hope your experience today affects your journey in the same way. —José Bourget

AU ATTEMPTS TO BREAK A WORLD RECORD

On Wednesday, January 13, about 510 people tried to break the world record for the number of people doing sit-ups for one minute. They were close with 496 completing the task, just missing the current record of 503 people.

FEELING A LITTLE BUGGY LATELY?

BY DWIGHT K. NELSON

Feeling a bit bugged out about life this soon into the New Year? No need to feel bad. Turns out you're surrounded by them—bugs, that is!

Thanks to their new study published in the scientific journal Peer J, entomologist Matt Bertone and his colleagues have announced we aren't alone when we're "home alone" any longer. We've always suspected we lived with a few anthropods, but who knew we had this many house guests!

Bertone and his research team picked 50 homes within thirty miles of Raleigh, North Carolina. "Armed with knee pads, headlamps, tweezers and vials of alcohol, groups of entomologists scoured the superficial surfaces of each home, putting at least one of each different type of bug they could find in a vial to analyze later” (www.sacbee.com/latest-news/article55590765.html#storylink=cpy). They headed back to their laboratories with over 10,000 arthropods of all sizes.

But no need to freak out just yet. Turns out “the team didn’t count each individual arthropod found in a home; a potentially impossible task. Rather, they focused on types of bugs. The results indicate a surprisingly diverse ecosystem within each house. The final count revealed no fewer than 579 arthropod morphospecies, or species that can be distinguished by their structures alone” (ibid). Which being interpreted means that the “average human household” is sharing their living quarters with around 100 “distinct morphospecies.” You understand, of course, that the actual “body count” of bugs you live with is tens of thousands. The scientists only identified which types of arthropods are declaring, Su casa es mi casa!

The good news is that pests (insects that cause injury or stress, et al) were relatively uncommon in these domiciles. No bed bugs were found. The bad news is that 78% of the homes were “home, sweet home” to large cockroaches (though not the destructive pest kind of roaches).

What are these thousands of house guests doing in our homes? Bertone remarks, “They’re just milling around at the edges of [the] room, eating little bits of hair and dead insects. This isn’t something that should change people’s behavior,” he said. Rather than reaching for the bug spray, said Bertone, people should be excited that they live alongside so many other species – more than he imagined were possible inside these relatively inhospitable bug habitats” (ibid).

Excited? Well, maybe not. But the good news is that if you’d like to be around a more welcome and visible circle of friends, the new GROW Groups (winter-spring semester) catalog is in your worship bulletin today (or online at www.pmchurch.org/growgroups). Take a few moments to peruse a truly amazing menu of topics—over 60 choices—for your selection this new season. These ten-week GROW Groups have been winning friends right and left—and you’re very welcome to pick out a group study or activity that interests you. So sign-up and join a circle of ten to 20 new or old acquaintances who share your same interest. (And don’t worry about the arthropods in your room—everyone in the circle lives with them, too!)

“Don’t give up meeting together, but encourage one another—all the more as you see the Day approaching” (Hebrews 10:25). And in a world where the Day of His return clearly is drawing nearer and nearer, what better time to find strength, courage and hope in a circle of Jesus’ fellowship? After all, there’s nothing buggy about needing one another for the uncharted adventure of this New Year. ■

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY BENEFITS EVERYONE

BY JOHN NAY

January 16 was Religious Freedom Day and soon PMC will take up our annual offering to support religious liberty.

We are greatly blessed to live in a country that respects religious liberty. As the President's proclamation for this year's Religious Freedom Day so accurately stated, however, these "ideals are not self-executing. Rather, they require a sustained commitment by each generation to uphold and preserve them."

Here in America in the past year we have seen a number of discussions and cases relating to religious liberty and its free exercise. We even witnessed a high profile case where a county clerk was jailed because she said her conscience required her to refuse to carry out the legal duties of her office as ordered by the courts. At the same time, however, she refused to allow her subordinates to carry out their duties in her place, effectively substituting her conscience for theirs. A hero to some and a villain to others, most on both sides would agree that it would have been better for the cause of religious liberty if the case had never arisen and had not been handled as it was.

We also must keep in mind that truly terrible things have happened abroad this past year in the name of religion, with thousands of people losing their lives. Secretary of State John Kerry noted that "75% of the world's people still live in countries that don't respect religious freedoms. . . . We have a long way to go when governments kill, detain, or torture people based on a religious belief."

We can be sure that additional religious liberty issues will arise in the coming year. In some countries people's lives will be at stake. Here in the United States cases more likely will involve employer/employee relations, the ability of religious institutions and people to carry out their work according to their beliefs, Sabbath observance, or the claims by some that this country is a “Christian nation” with all that statement implies. We also must keep in mind that freedom of religion and freedom of worship are not the same thing. True religious liberty is broader than just the freedom to worship.

At the same time, on this issue—like any other—we should “be shrewd as serpents and innocent as doves” (Matthew 10:16, NIV). The most extraordinary and at times ridiculous claims circulate on the internet with great speed and ease, and we must use our God-given common sense to hold back from assuming that online conspiracy theories, rumors, and end-of-time stories are true simply because we’ve seen the supposed “inside story” on the internet. At a religious liberty panel discussion last spring I was dismayed at some audience questions that indicated an amazing naïveté on the part of some well-meaning members.

The fact is that religious liberty issues are part of our history here in the United States and all over the world, and they will continue to be until the end of time. When my wife and I were privileged last June to travel in northern Italy we were inspired when we visited the sites where thousands of Waldensians laid down their lives rather than violate their consciences.

Religious liberty truly is a cornerstone of our democracy. “No provision in our Constitution ought to be dearer to man than that which protects the rights of conscience against the enterprises of the civil authority” (Thomas Jefferson).

As this year’s Religious Freedom Day proclamation states, we should “recommit ourselves to protecting religious minorities here at home and around the world.” We should “remember those who have been persecuted, tortured, or murdered for their faith and reject any politics that targets people because of their religion, including any suggestion that our laws, policies, or practices should single out certain faiths for disfavored treatment.” We should “state clearly and without equivocation that an attack on any faith is an attack on every faith and come together to promote religious freedom for all.”

We can be proud of the Adventist tradition of supporting religious liberty for all. At this year’s special offering for religious liberty let’s help keep that tradition strong. ■

"Come By Here" is the plea of the words "Kum Ba Yah" in today's offertory. African-American spirituals are rich in heart-searching, sometimes heart-rending, pleas growing out of tough experiences in real life. Today's musical setting, skillfully prepared by Philip Jones, seems to reflect a wide range of emotion. In the first variation, one can hear quiet, even melancholy, contemplation.

The second variation seems to infuse an essential degree of quiet hopefulness into the scene. The third variation seems almost to burst with joy, the melody striding confidently in the lowest part while joyous figures leap above it. The fourth variation, full and rich in its sound, seems to paint in broad strokes a reality of God's surpassing, strong presence ("God With Us"). ■

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY

Today's offering is for Religious Liberty. The Seventh-day Adventist's Religious Liberty department, through legal interventions to support workplace challenges; through distribution of the Liberty Magazine to thought leaders in Washington, D.C., and State and Provincial centers; through member-based initiatives and seminars; as well as media outlets, is dedicated to spreading an understanding of the great "gospel of liberty." Without your support little can be done. Our gifts are needed as never before. Prophecy is unfolding daily and the moves to compel false worship are more blatant. Thank you for your generous participation in this important offering.

Important Changes to UPC/Label Guidelines for Investment

Take note of this important change regarding the type of UPC codes eligible for investment. Cedar Lakes Foods remains unaffected by this change. Please continue to submit those UPC codes as before. The only eligible UPC codes from labels are for the Loma Linda, Worthington, and Caroline's canned food items. UPC codes from any frozen foods and any Morningstar products are no longer eligible for investment. Therefore, do not submit any labels or UPC codes from any frozen foods or Morningstar products. The only codes now accepted are for canned products with the UPC codes of 28989 or 45561. Money received from ANF for labels is sent to the Michigan Conference, not to the churches from which the labels are sent. The Conference office distributes the funds they receive from ANF at their discretion within the Michigan Conference.

We Mourn

Today we mourn with Kathryn Hickerson on the death of her husband, Stan, on Friday, January 15. Stan was a pastor, teacher and advocate for women in ministry and was involved with the Harbor of Hope church. We also sympathize with the family of Esther Hare, who died on Monday, January 18. And with Karan Bennet on the death of her mother, Frances Jensen, on Tuesday, January 19. Memorial services will be held at a later date. With these families we look forward to the resurrection morning. "Even so, come Lord Jesus."

THEY NEED YOUR PRAYERS

BY REBECCA COLEMAN

Two years ago I felt God tugging at my heart; I knew that I needed to leave the hustle and bustle of college life, if only for a short while, and take time off to give of myself to others. I decided to serve as a student missionary, and through lots of prayer I accepted a call to be an English Teacher in Guinea, West Africa.

From the beginning of my student mission experience up until the very end I had prayer partners. Friends and family uplifted me in their daily prayers as I fundraised, prepared to leave, and traveled. Whatever doubts I may have had about my decision to serve overseas were quickly dispelled when I arrived. After my first few days in Guinea I realized that I was right where God wanted me to be. Every step of the way I felt the prayers of my partners back home. When I left Guinea a year later my life had completely changed; not only did I have an impact on my students' lives, but they had a lasting impact on mine.

Every year Andrews University sends out student missionaries all over the world. They each face joys and happiness, but they also face times that can be difficult and faith shaking. One way that you can help see them through their journey is to pray for them. God's plans for us are far beyond what we can imagine and maybe yours is to partner with those who are spreading God's love overseas.

More information about current student missionaries and their locations can be obtained by contacting Student Missions in the Andrews University Campus Ministries Offices. ■
