THE HABITUDE OF GRATITUDE

A FEAST OF HYMNS • PAGE 8

WELCOME

to Pioneers

You've picked an amazing day to worship together with us. Maybe you came this morning chasing down a blessing? But what if today you experience something that you could do every day to receive a blessing? Researcher Brene Brown states, "I don't have to chase extraordinary moments to find happiness—it's right in front of me if I'm paying attention and practicing gratitude."

This morning we welcome you to practice gratitude. Draw your attention to what's happening right now and let's join together to: give voice to thanks, give song to joy, and give rhythm to hope. I'm confident if you give into the gratitude you give up on the chase. And wouldn't it be nice for even a few hours to take a break from all the running you've been doing? Come in, practice gratitude, and relish the joy.

A ONE ITEM THANKSGIVING LIST

BY DWIGHT K. NELSON

May I be a bit more personal with you in this blog and may I share with you a line that has come to mean very much to me? It was the early "morning after" I married off our little girl Kristin. A Labor Day morning—she and Andrew had gotten married here at the church the day before. I'm usually not one to be bothered by "Rainy Days and Mondays." But this Monday I awakened with an ache in my heart—the gnawing of a nameless, numinous sense of loss. Of a line crossed, an innocence gone, a chapter ended. And you can never go back. I got out of bed, tiptoed past her empty bedroom, and down to where I have worship. Opened my Bible to my psalm for the day. And wouldn't you know it—God in his gentle mercy had timed that cycle through the Psalms, so that I would come to these words on the morning after my little girl left home for good.

Whom have I in heaven but You?
And there is none upon earth that I desire besides You.
My flesh and my heart fail;
But God is the strength of my heart
and my portion forever.
Psalm 73:25-26

Our childhood comes, our childhood goes. Our friends come, our friends go. Our spouses come, our spouses go. Our children come, our children go. Jobs come, jobs go. Health comes, health goes. Life comes, life goes. And death comes. "The LORD gave, and the LORD hath taken away; blessed be the name of the LORD" (Job 1:21).

Until one morning we wake up to the words of Peggy Lee's throaty whisper, "Is that all there is?"

John Piper in his book God Is the Gospel captures well this prayer of Asaph—that when you have God, you truly do have everything you've ever wanted or will ever need—that all things else, the litany of blessings outpoured 24/7 into our recipient lives, are simply divine incentives intended to lead us to deeper gratitude, not for the gifts so much as for the Giver: "All the enticements to God that are not God are precious and precarious. They can lead us to God or lure us to themselves. They may be food or marriage or church or miracles. All these blessings bring love letters from God. But unless we stress continually that God himself is the gospel, people will fall in love with the mailman—whether his name is forgiveness of sins or eternal life or heaven or ministry or miracles or family or food" (143).

Falling in love with the mailman—if we become so enamored with the blessings God sends us that we fall love with the gifts instead of the Giver—what a sad mistaken twist!

Eugene Peterson in The Message expresses Asaph's prayer to God this way:

"You're all I want in heaven! You're all I want on earth!" There it is—a one item Thanksgiving list.

John Piper concludes: "That must mean, first, that if every other good thing were lost, Asaph would still rejoice in God. And it must mean, second, that in and through all the other good things on earth and in heaven, Asaph sees God and loves him. Everything is desired for what it shows of God. Augustine put it like this: 'He loves Thee too little who loves anything together with Thee which he loves not for Thy sake'" (144). Reread that line.

On his deathbed, Charles Wesley dictated to his wife his final hymn:

Jesus, my only hope Thou art
 Strength of my failing flesh and heart
 O, could I catch a smile from Thee
 And drop into eternity.

A one item Thanksgiving list.

Whom have I in heaven but You?
 And there is none upon earth that I
 desire besides You.
 My flesh and my heart fail;
 But God is the strength of my heart
 and my portion forever.
 Psalm 73:25-26 ■

YOUTH EVANGELISM THEY NEVER LEFT

BY BEN MARTIN

Luke 15 is a chapter of parables. The chapter is made up of three parables all about the lost: The Lost Sheep, The Lost Coin, and The Lost Son (The Prodigal Son). We spend a lot of time talking about two of the three of these stories.

The Lost Sheep is told to children beginning at the earliest ages. This parable is depicted in artwork and is a story with which we are all familiar. The parable of the Prodigal Son is another very familiar story that is often depicted and retold. These two parables have a lot in common. In both stories the lost has left. In both stories the lost is far away, either in the 'wilderness' or 'a far off land'.

The symmetry of these parables creates a chiasmic structure with the parable of The Lost Coin in the middle. With a chiasm the main point of the writer is not at the beginning or the end but is placed in the center. The Lost Coin appears to be the point that Jesus was trying to make, yet, of the three, it's the parable that gets the least attention.

The Lost Coin is a story that does not grab the attention of the hearer in the way that the other two stories do. The coin did not leave or wander, but was merely misplaced. It did not travel; it did not even leave the home. The coin did not know that it was lost.

To me, this parable paints a picture of Youth Ministry and the mission for this community. In a safe environment like we have here in our corner of Michigan, it is easy to be comfortable. We have no shortage of wonderful programs and events. Ministry is happening on every front and we seem to be surrounded by people who believe the same way we do. Growing up in a place like this with wonderful Adventist educational and employment opportunities means we never need to leave the house.

Yet there are many in this community who sit in chapels day after day and, without ever even making a decision, find themselves no longer in the hand of the Master. Looking at the statistics of the young leaving the church we can see this is a problem throughout North America, and Berrien Springs is not immune to this difficulty.

Conversations with parents often turn to tears and prayers as we talk about the journey of their child. How could this happen? What is the solution? We have provided every possible opportunity for our children and then some. But like the coin in the parable, we find them missing. In this church alone, there are over one thousand children from birth to eighteen; it's not easy to keep track of them all.

This short parable gives the reader insight into how we can work on seeking the lost within our own community. First of all, we must count. We do not need to count to have the largest events; we need to count to keep track of each other. As a community, we must pay attention when someone does not show up. We need to call. We need to stop by. We need to keep track of each other. We need to keep track of our children.

Secondly, we must turn the lights on and clean the house. We cannot, as a church, continue to act as though everything is all right and that we have no problems. We need to be honest and open with each other and with our children. We are not perfect, and when the lights are on this becomes clear.

Youth Ministry is evangelism! We are seeking the lost and keeping track of the children that we have been given. Sometimes the lost have not left, but they are the ones that will never return on their own because they are still in the house.

Often the purpose of these articles is to share a ministry and give the reader information on how he or she could help contribute financially. I am writing to you as an invitation. I invite you to find a place where you can join us in Youth Evangelism. Perhaps you could help in a Sabbath School, Pathfinders, Adventurers, or one of the other incredible ministries that work on the discipleship journey of our children. However, if you do not feel called to ministry with children, I ask that you seek out the children that are in your life. Check in with them. Keep track of these children. Be open with these children. Let us not lose another coin! ■

THE COIN DID NOT LEAVE OR WANDER, BUT WAS MERELY MISPLACED. IT DID NOT TRAVEL; IT DID NOT EVEN LEAVE THE HOME.

A REFORMATION EMPHASIS

BY KENNETH LOGAN

A Feast of Hymns today emphasizes music and words from the Reformation of Martin Luther and closely-related trends.

"Praise to the Lord": Its text dates to the late seventeenth century, with English versions later. Its melody is in German chorale-style AAB form, repeating its first section. Before the final stanza will be an organ-alone setting by a cousin of J. S. Bach, Johann Gottfried Walther.

"Sing Praise to God": This also is in AAB form. The melody appeared in a hymnal in Berlin as early as 1566. Today's setting is freshly-created for this Feast, and includes stanza three as a choir moment (congregation silent) that uses the hymns' text in a new musical version. Singers in the congregation then sing stanza 4 from hymnal number 29.

"From Hymns of Luther" is a compilation. Luther is credited with the text of "Dear Christians." It is said to be his first congregational hymn, in print in 1524. We hear two of its ten stanzas. "Grant Peace" was, in German, Luther's translation of a Latin text from approximately a millennium earlier. It probably appeared twice in hymnals as early as 1529. From "O Lord" we hear two stanzas, the first based on Luther's adaptation of a text, along with an English rendering (paraphrase) of a stanza of his own.

"Christ Lay in Death's Bonds": This draws the melody and text of a chorale stanza into an elaborate choral and instrumental context, coming from one of Bach's many church cantatas for voices and instruments. Chorale phrases appear in long notes in the soprano. Stating that Christ lay dead, this stanza quickly turns from Christ's death to His resurrection, enjoining both joyfulness and thankfulness. (It is sung in German, with German and English texts printed in the service order).

"From Chorales of Luther's Movement" is a compilation, rendered for brass and organ, of four chorale melodies. Most of the harmonizations are by Johann Sebastian Bach.

"Now Thank We All Our God," a mighty chorale, concludes worship today in three versions: for congregational singing, for musical benediction response, and for organ. ■

THANKSGIVING CARDS

THANK YOU ALL OVER THE WORLD

Thanksgiving cards are placed inside this bulletin . . . giving you the perfect opportunity to write a special personal word of gratitude, or love, or friendship, or forgiveness this morning. Simply write your message, fold it only once, write the address on the designated side, and bring your letter forward. We'll do the rest, mailing your letter anywhere in the world you want to send it. (If it's a campus address, write "Campus" under the name on the outside). ■
