WELCOME

to Pioneers

The title of the new film "A Place To Grow" caught my attention this week. It will be shown this Sunday night at the Howard and will attract thousands from all over Michiana, since its theme will be centered on life in Berrien County.

What would it look like for a church to be "a place to GROW"? Over and over Jesus' life reminds us that we are a place where as disciples we help grow other disciples in His name.

Let's pray that we will grow in our love for each other, in our faith that He holds us and in our hope that we will see Him soon. Let's share together with others the Reason for our love and faith and hope, especially today.

We are glad that you are here. Welcome!

Journey to ALPHA CENTAURI

BY DWIGHT K. NELSON

Never mind that the Alpha Centauri star system is 4.367 light years away—some of the world’s richest and brightest minds have announced a new collaboration to get there. From here!

This week famed physicist Stephen Hawking, internet investor Yuri Milner and Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg formally teamed up to launch project Breakthrough Starshot—a space expedition to our closest star (beyond the sun). How far is 4.367 light years? Trillions of miles—nearly 300,000 times the distance from the earth to the sun. Traveling at the speed of the Space Shuttle it would take a leisurely 165,000 years to reach Alpha Centauri. (It’s the return trip that really ages you!)

Actually these collaborators are not planning on sending a “who” but rather a “what.” Yuri Milner said the eventual goal is sending hundreds or thousands of tiny spacecraft, each weighing far less than an ounce, to the Alpha Centauri star system. . . . Propelled by energy from a powerful array of Earth-based lasers, the spacecraft would fly [with actual extended sails a few yards wide] at about one-fifth the speed of light. They could reach Alpha Centauri in 20 years, where they could make observations and send the results back to Earth” (www.seattletimes.com/nation-world/stephen-hawking-joins-bid-to-seek-life-with-tiny-spacecraft/).

Too crazy an idea for us humans? Not according to Hawking. “We commit to the next great leap into the cosmos because we are human and our nature is to fly” (ibid).

He’s certainly right about the “our nature is to fly” notion. The Creator-Designer of this universe gifted intelligent life with a capacity to know, to question, to explore—a capacity we earth inhabitants have clearly yet to maximize. That the most well-known thinkers in our midst are so preoccupied with this quest to “search for extraterrestrial intelligence” (SETI) should be no surprise. As the wise man Solomon observed, “[God] has put eternity in [our] hearts” (Ecclesiastes 3:11). This embedding has fueled exploration from the beginning of time. For at its core is the longing to make contact with the Eternal. “He has put eternity in our hearts.”

That’s why this campus was raised up over a century ago—to send into the world the brightest and best of Adventist young—to make contact on behalf of the Creator with other intelligent earth inhabitants—to tap into that latent longing for eternity and the Eternal. “Our hearts are restless till they find rest in Thee,” Augustine wrote. The God-shaped vacuum within us makes the mission of Christ’s followers simpler. All we need to do is to cross the relational bridge into the lives of those we know, those we work with or play with or occasionally socialize with. A simple relational bridge to cross over and connect with the Eternal already in our friends’ consciousness.

Coming this fall (October 14-22) is “Hope Trending: A Crash Course on How to Live Without Fear” (www.hopetrending.org)—the perfect opportunity for you to now begin composing your prayer list of friends and acquaintances you are positioned to reach for Jesus. Pray over their lives, pray their names to the Savior who emptied His life and treasury to win their minds, their hearts. He’ll do the winning—let us do the bridging that begins with praying.

Think about it. Someone this fall is going to meet Christ in an eternally life-changing way. Why not pray that God will guide you to put that someone on your prayer list now? He will do the winning—we must do the praying and then the bridging.

Because Yuri Milner is right: “We can do more than gaze at the stars. We can actually reach them” (ibid). Your praying, your bridging can become for someone a one-way ticket far beyond Alpha Centauri—why not a one-way friendship into Eternity? ■

“YURI MILNER SAID THE EVENTUAL GOAL IS SENDING HUNDREDS OR THOUSANDS OF TINY SPACECRAFT, EACH WEIGHING FAR LESS THAN AN OUNCE, TO THE ALPHA CENTAURI STAR SYSTEM...”

AN EXPERIENCE: UNIVERSITY VESPERS

BY JORDAN SMART

Stepping onto the sidewalks of Andrews University four years ago as a freshman was my very first time on campus. I had never visited the school and had only heard stories about it from others who had. To me, it felt like a thing of legends. A place I wanted to go to for something adventurous and new. When I got accepted into Andrews I was excited with all the opportunities that this school had to offer. One of those opportunities was being a part of University Vespers.

I first got involved by being a part of the “set up” team, which met an hour before the program began. My role was quite small and I simply helped with menial tasks each Friday night. Slowly but surely I was given more opportunities and tasks as my freshman year continued. I was asked to be a part of the UV team. Pastor José Bourget was a huge blessing and positive instrument that helped to stimulate my spiritual gifts and leadership skills when crafting UV programs for my fellow students. All of my experiences with UV have taught me lessons that I’ll always remember. Some were more memorable than others, like when Cointe St. Brice, an Andrews graduate, and I did a special element with the congregation, or when I tripped going onto the stage. Each one has added to my growth.

When my junior year came along, I was asked to be the Co-Director of University Vespers with Isaac Suh and lead the UV team. It felt like a natural progression to a position of leadership. There were times I felt inadequate for the job or nervous when I feared the program was going to fall apart, but the team, who I also considered family at this point, helped me every step of the way. Sometimes, I did feel alone working in this ministry, but I never was. My “family” was always with me. God was there too, helping me to become the vessel for the gospel, and someone who could serve Him in any capacity that He needs.

I truly believe that this was where I was meant to be, and the growth I have experienced is something that has become truly invaluable. A sense of purpose and self-worth has been brought to my life by my family here at Andrews but also my UV team. This is one of the reasons why Andrews was truly worth it, and why I will never forget my time here. ■

MUSIC ALIVE

EMPTIES

How should one respond to the "empties" of life such as great loss or great lack, with courage? While today's Worship in Music may not provide specific answers, it yet provides an example of response to emptiness. In this case, the emptiness came with the death, at the hand of a drunk driver, of Heather Cramer Reu, leading to the commissioning of today's Worship in Music,

"One Life Beautiful." The composer, Julie Giroux, comments, "The title itself is a double-entendre which in one sense is referring to the person this work is dedicated to as in 'one life' that was beautifully lived. The other sense is a direct observation concluding that having only one life is what makes life so sacred, tragic and so very precious." ■
