NUCLEAR FISHIN'

NEVER LOOK A GIFT
FISH IN THE MOUTH

WELCOME

to Pioneer

"One generation will declare Your works to the next and will proclaim Your mighty acts" (Psalm 145:4).

Can you picture it? People of differing ages exchanging stories about how great God is, then realizing that God is consistently awesome and His goodness unchanging? It's the gift of being an intergenerational church!

May we see God at work in each other's lives as we worship together today. May we leave this place proclaiming "Wow God!" and be encouraged by stories of His mighty acts.

Thank you for joining us today. Welcome!

THE GOSPEL IN JEANS

BY DWIGHT K. NELSON

I have a young friend named Wandile Mthiyane, who is wrapping up his degree in architecture here at the university. Wandile is a South African born in the large seaside city of Durban. The story of how he got to Andrews is itself blog worthy. But the very short version is that with no money and a prayer he decided to ask the mayor of Durban for financial aid. Lo and behold he spots the mayor exiting a meeting, introduces himself, gets invited to sit down with the mayor, whereupon he shares his dream for designing inner city housing for low income South Africans. The mayor is enthused, provides the money for Wandile to come to this country and Andrews University to pursue architecture and this dream to house the homeless.

The End? No—the story continues: Wandile learns the skills of architecture at Andrews, takes a break last year to return to Durban with classmates from the School of Architecture, secures initial funding for the new prototype housing, and begins construction. The dream is full steam ahead! In fact, he sent me an email a couple weeks ago with a synopsis of this newly birthed project. Here it is:

"It always seems impossible, until it's done." Nelson Mandela

It's amazing what people can do when they come together for a common goal.

Since last August, Andrews University's Masters School of Architecture [has] partnered with a local shanty community in Durban, South Africa to help design and build a home for a disabled family of three.

This project was motivated by Wandile Mthiyane, who grew up in the area and wanted to go back and be the hands and feet of Jesus. Currently all the designs are done, and Wandile is on the ground building the house with the local community and architecture students from Durban University of Technology and University of Kwa Zulu Natal.

The building experience has opened doors to ministry as local officials ask Wandile, "Why in the world would you leave everything to come and do this?" Wandile says he usually answers that he's "just carrying on the mandate Jesus left for him on earth." As you might imagine, this leads to full-blown conversations about faith in the broken world we live in.

What has been most inspiring in this project has been seeing white South African students from the suburbs come down to the townships for the first time and exclaim how they feel safe and loved in a place they'd always been taught to stay away from. This project is making us realize that we're more alike than we are different, which is what the whole concept of Ubuntu is all about: “I am because we are”—and really we are because He is. We have experienced how this project is helping to break the walls of Apartheid.

Each year our pastoral team here at Pioneer votes a single mission project to add to the many projects this congregation already is supporting right here at home. We believe this amazing Ubuntu project is the right one for Pioneer to support in 2017. The project now needs $3,500 to finish its initial phase. If you would like to partner with our School of Architecture in establishing this new prototype housing for the Durban townships (and it is very possible the prototype will spread to shanty towns across the Republic of South Africa), please mark your contribution “Global Mobilization” on a Pioneer tithe envelope.

Isn't this what Jesus meant? “Inasmuch as you do it to the least of these My brothers and sisters, you do it to Me” (see Matthew 25:40).

No wonder Desire of Ages discloses: “We shall find His footprints beside the sickbed, in the hovels of poverty, in the crowded alleys of the great city, and in every place where there are human hearts in need of consolation. In doing as Jesus did when on earth, we shall walk in His steps” (640).

So why not walk in His steps with a gift to the Ubuntu project? Who better to follow? ■

A Mother's LOVE

BY JUDY NAY

A few days ago I had the chance to spend a couple of hours with a good friend of mine. This was unusual because she lives in another country and is the primary caregiver for her 24-year-old daughter whose progressive debilitating disease has rendered her bed-ridden and unable to speak for the last 12 years. The job of keeping the daughter comfortable, pain free, fed, and content continues 24/7. Yet the mother's faith remains strong and she credits the courage and strength she receives, as well as her daughter's extended length of life, to the blessings of God.

Most of us aren't called upon to "mother" in that type of extreme situation. Yet mothering for the majority of us includes a range of activities and emotions that we might never have thought possible. It is because of this deep connection between mother and child that many countries set aside a special day to celebrate mothers.

The earliest appears to be in England where mothers were honored with a special day in the early 1600s, calling their day "Mothering Sunday." During that time small children were often sent away to work, but were able to go home to be with their mothers on that special day.

In the United States Julia Ward Howe, the author of the Battle Hymn of the Republic, was so saddened by what she saw as the unnecessary death and carnage brought about by the Civil War that she implored mothers everywhere to protest the killing of their sons. She called for an international Mother's Day to celebrate peace and motherhood.

Anna Jarvis, a peace activist who had cared for wounded soldiers during the Civil War, also worked to set aside a day to honor mothers because she believed that a mother is "the person who has done more for you than anyone in the world." Eventually in 1914 Woodrow Wilson established the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day in the United States.

This year Mother's Day will be observed tomorrow, May 14. There are many ways to celebrate, and if you are lucky enough to have your mother near I urge you to spend as much time with her as you can. You can take her out or buy her gifts, but I guarantee that what she really wants is time with you. If she lives too far away to visit be sure to call her and tell her that you love and appreciate her. If you are estranged from your mother in any way, this is a good time to start to build a bridge that can bring you close together again.

And be sure not to forget the others who have influenced your life as a mother might. Step-mothers, aunts, or even family friends who have stepped in to nurture you will be delighted to know that you remember and appreciate the sacrifices they have made on your behalf.

To all the mothers in our extended PMC family, I wish you a very happy Mother's Day! ■

NAMES, IMAGES, ATTRIBUTES, BLESSING

"O Worship the King, All-Glorious Above" (hymn 83) has profound depths of poetic meaning. First are the powerful names for God, reflecting His transcendence and His immanence—King, Shield, Friend . . . how many appear here? There are striking images—for example, referring to God's bountiful care: "It breathes in the air, it shines in the light." Third, there are telling references to God's attributes—wonderful love, might, grace . . . how many? Evangelical writer Kenneth Osbeck comments that "all combine to describe with literary eloquence and spiritual warmth the majesty and praise-worthiness of our God." Of today's offertory, "Bwana Awabiriki, Ukmcha Bwana," published program notes from the publisher state that "the original lyrics of the song used in this arrangement are sacred: . . . 'May God grant you a blessing, Revere the Lord' . . ." ■

FINANCIAL FEATURE

WORLD BUDGET

The PMC Stewardship Committee recently completed a successful "Dave Ramsey Financial Peace University." About 40-50 individuals and couples gained control of their finances using the "baby steps" outlined in the program. Each of the individuals and couples had unique life experiences. But the simple steps allowed all of them to reduce debt and begin to create wealth. The Stewardship Committee is one entity supported by the PMC Church Budget. Give liberally to continue the positive impacts!
